PREFACE.

UNDER the not very happily abridged title Handlists of English Printers, these lists of the books of London printers from the beginning of the sixteenth century to the grant of a charter to the Stationers' Company in July, 1557, were begun at my suggestion as long ago as 1894, with the object of putting on record all the known books of each printer as a basis for further work. When the types, woodcuts and ornaments used by these printers have been examined and described the ground will be cleared for fuller bibliographical lists which should include the typographically anonymous books, whether they bear a bookseller's name or are "sine ulla nota." The first of the four instalments was entirely extracted from Mr. Gordon Duff's note-books by Mr. Plomer. In the second the most important heading, that of Pynson, was drawn from the same source; Robert Proctor took the two Rastells, and Mr. Plomer did Treveris, Bankes, Andrewe, Godfray and Byddell. After this there was a long wait due to the absence of volunteers and then Dr. Greg took the large and very difficult heading Berthelet, and Dr. McKerrow that of Grafton, and the present writer rather unwillingly put into shape and assumed responsibility for a number of headings for which materials had been collected from printed sources. To this third instalment Mr. Duff contributed the list of the nine exceptionally rare books by John Butler, and soon afterwards placed at the Society's disposal most of the lists in the present Part. Publication was delayed first by the problem of how to deal with the printers of only one or two books and afterwards by difficulties about some of the devices, which have now been solved by Dr. McKerrow.

The present Part is arranged, like its predecessors, chronologically, the printers of less than three books being arranged alphabetically in a separate list at the end. With the exception of these the List for each printer is a separate sheet or part of a sheet, and all the lists in the four Parts can be rearranged in a single sequence, alphabetical or chronological as owners prefer. The two tables here appended will form a guide to either arrangement and also facilitate reference by members who prefer to keep the four Parts in their original wrappers "as issued."

The history of the book will explain some inconsistencies. Some lists have come to me in old spelling, others modernised, and having regard to their purely provisional character, the lack of uniformity did not seem important. I think now that as the old spelling in many cases could not be checked, it would have been better if it had all been modernised and we have used modernised spelling more consistently as the work progressed. For the three sixteenth century printers who were in business before 1500 Mr. Duff added notes of their incunabula for the sake of completeness. In the same way the provincial books of printers who worked both in London and in the country have been included. The books of the other provincial printers are listed by Mr. Duff in his Sandars Lectures on them, and they are therefore not included here. As regards printers who worked both before and after the grant of a charter to the Stationers' Company where their later books are few they have sometimes been included.

Although for the sake of the original plan printers' devices are given in this final instalment as in the three others, as regards devices this work must be regarded as superseded by Dr. McKerrow's monograph.

NOTE.

Books in which the printer's name does not appear are marked with an asterisk. In the case of Proclamations, where the date of the Proclamation appears, the print has been taken as dated. In the list of undated books a number of conjectural dates have been inserted. The data for these are far too complicated to be set forth in such a list as the present, but the editor hopes before long to have an opportunity of dealing with the whole question of Berthelet-chronology in a more adequate manner. Dates in inverted commas appear in the books themselves but cannot be accepted. Those marked '1534' have a titlepage-border bearing that date. A dash before a date indicates that that date is the latest possible; after, that it is the earliest possible. When two dates are connected with a dash, they indicate the limits between which the date of printing must lie. In the case of the Statutes I have not ventured to alter any of the conjectural dates put forward by Proctor, but have merely copied them as they stand from his Table (Transactions, V, 255). I should mention that in one or two further cases I have been tempted to offer conjectures of my own, but have refrained; while for some of those he put forward I have so far failed to discover the ground. A few small errors in his Table may be here corrected: 23 Henry VIII (b) insert AR^{a}; 27 Henry VIII (c) for AR^{c} read AR^{e}; 34, 35 Henry VIII (b) for March 1 read Jan. 3; and 37 Henry VIII (b) insert the date '1546.' Mr. Hazlitt's bibliographical collections are referred to by an extension of the notation adopted by Mr. Gray in his Index. Thus V = Second Supplement to Third Series, 1892; VI = Appendix to Index, 1893; VII = the volume issued in 1903.

In the Parvulorum Institutio Butler uses a cut, almost certainly from a Horæ, representing S. John the Evangelist. As it bears the underline "Initiū ſācti euāgelij ſcdʒ Iohē," this cannot be considered a device, though obviously used with reference to Butler's sign.

GIBSON'S DEVICE.

Herbert notes that The Concordance of the New Testament printed by Gibson in 1535 was issued with the mark "T. G.," on the sides of a cut, afterwards used by John Day, with this motto, "Sum horum charitas"; and under Day, he writes of "a singular device of Gibson's, which Day altered and used frequently afterwards." Unfortunately the British Museum copy of the Concordance, the only one at present traced, wants the last leaf, which presumably bore the device, and it is therefore impossible to reproduce this in the form in which Gibson used it.

1539—1566.

R. B. McKERROW.

NOTE.

With regard to the Injunctions of 1547, I may say that I dare hardly hope that this list is even approximately correct. Of the twenty copies which I have seen (eight at B.M., seven at Bodl., and five at U.L.C.), hardly any two appear to correspond exactly throughout. The editions were probably set up in duplicate—at least—and the sheets gathered indiscriminately for binding, but to treat them sheet by sheet, the only satisfactory method, was impossible in the present list.

The same is true of the Book of Common Prayer, the extreme scarcity of complete copies of which, not made up of two or more editions, makes a satisfactory estimate of the number of independent issues almost, if not quite, impossible. I can only suppose that, in the case of such religious books as were in constant demand, Grafton was in the habit of keeping his stock unbound and making it up from time to time, when his men had leisure from other work, by reprinting single sheets. Those newly printed would be added to the old stock, and it would be a mere matter of chance which were taken in making up future copies.

Lastly, it is quite clear that Grafton frequently reprinted his colophons, especially in his religious books, in order doubtless to show that the work was the same as that originally published, and that some of the Injunctions, Homilies, Statutes, etc., were really issued at a later date than that which they bear. In a complete bibliography of the productions of his press this question of true dates would, of course, have to be gone into in detail, though, save in the case of the Statutes, I much doubt whether there is sufficient evidence to arrive at even approximate correctness. To have attempted anything of the sort in the present list would have been merely to add a number of queried dates which it would have been impossible to explain or to justify.

Richard Grafton.

(?) From Modus tenendi unum hundredum. "1527."

Previous to his removal to Pynson's printing office in the Strand in 1530, Redman made use of three woodcuts, taken from Horae Series, as devices. I.—St. George and the Dragon. II.—A diagram of the Trinity. III.—The infant Christ seated. After 1530 he used three of Pynson's devices.

Redman calculated his years from March 25th.

WYNKYN DE WORDE.
JULIAN NOTARY.
R. & W. FAQUES.
JOHN SKOT.

BY E. GORDON DUFF.

LONDON:
PRINTED BY BLADES, EAST & BLADES,
FOR THE BIBLIOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY,

TEMPORARY PREFACE.

AT the meeting of the Council of the Bibliographical Society in October, 1894, it was resolved that an endeavour should be made to promote the study of the history of printing in England from the end of the fifteenth century to the granting of a charter to the Stationers' Company in 1556, by inviting members (i) to draw up rough hand-lists of the books attributed to each press, and (ii) to make these rough hand-lists the basis of papers to be read before the Society and to be subsequently printed with the addition of as full bibliographies as could be obtained. Several members are at work on tentative hand-lists of the books of various printers, and the Hon. Secretary will be glad of any further offers of help. In the meantime the kindness of Mr. E. Gordon Duff has enabled the Society to make a beginning at an earlier date and on a more important scale than could have been anticipated, for the list of books printed by Wynkyn de Worde now issued represents the work not of months, but of years, and more than trebles the number of works hitherto recorded in any single list of his books.

To make the list more complete Mr. Duff has kindly added to it the names of the books printed by De Worde during the fifteenth century, which will be described at length in the bibliography of English fifteenth century books, which he hopes soon to issue. The rest of the list is compiled exactly on the lines on which the Society desires that all its helpers should work, and this temporary Preface is written to call attention to some features in it.

The essential characteristic of these hand-lists is that they are tentative preliminaries to more detailed bibliographies. Thus the name of any book whose existence has been asserted on reasonably good authority should be included in them, even though no copy can be traced. Books in this class are indicated in the list by the absence of any note as to where copies are to be found, and all members of the Society and other students into whose hands these lists may fall, who may be able to give any information about any of them, are earnestly requested to send their notes to the author of the list.* The same kindness is asked for in the case of books, or editions, which have not been registered. Gleaners after Mr. Duff are not likely to have very much to add, but most of the members who have undertaken other printers are personally acquainted with the contents of only two or three libraries at most, and unless their work is supplemented by friendly helpers no great advance can be made.

Where the existence of a book is known the compiler of the list is expected to add the name of the library or libraries in which a copy is to be found, preference being given to the great public and university libraries to which access can be most easily obtained.† Where a private collector has printed a catalogue of his books, or has expressly given his permission for his ownership to be mentioned, his name should be added in the case of works not to be found in public libraries. In the absence of a catalogue, or of express permission, the words "Private Library" should be substituted for the name. Some owners of rare books cherish schemes of reprinting or writing on them, and do not wish to be exposed to the solicitations of publishers of photographic reprints, or of casual editors. Others have simply the collector's horror of lending. In either case, until all property is municipalized, these scruples have a right to be respected, and unless this courtesy is exercised it is obvious that the Society will probably lose much valuable information which might otherwise be placed at its disposal.

* In the case of the list of Wynkyn de Worde belonging to the fifteenth century Mr. Duff will be grateful for information as to the entries marked with a dagger.

† The abbreviations U. L. C., for University Library, Cambridge; J. R. L., for John Rylands Library, etc., by which the various collections are denoted, are not likely to give any trouble, but a full list will be given when a volume is completed.

In addition to the list of books it is proposed to reproduce a complete set of the marks or devices used by each printer. These marks, and the different states in which they occur, often supply the most trustworthy means of assigning approximate dates to undated books, and in the case of De Worde the successive use of the marks here numbered 5, 10 and 14, and the successive states of No. 6, are striking examples in point. As it is not always easy to secure that a photographic reproduction shall be the exact size of the original, the measurement in millimetres of the example from which each reproduction has been made is added below it.

Besides the Wynkyn de Worde List, Mr. Duff has presented the Society with his notes of books printed by Julyan Notary, Richard and William Faques, and John Skot, and these also are here printed, with reproductions of the printers' devices.

As has been said, lists of the works of other English printers have been taken in hand by different members, and it is hoped that more volunteers will come forward. Whenever two or three such lists are ready they will be printed, but in such a way that the different contributions can eventually be arranged in chronological order, so as to give a conspectus of the whole of the literature printed in England during the first half of the sixteenth century.

A permanent title-page and index will be printed when a sufficient number of consecutive contributions are in hand to form a volume.

PREFACE.

After an interval of nine years and with some misgivings a new section of these Hand-Lists of English Printers is now issued. The Lists to which my own name is appended have been in type for some years, and many friends have worked at them with me, but they remain unsatisfactory because work of this kind should be done by a peripatetic and not a stationary bibliographer. They would never have been issued had not Mr. Greg and Mr. McKerrow come forward with much more satisfactory Lists, based on personal comparisons of editions at the Bodleian, and at the University Library, Cambridge, as well as at the British Museum. I should like, however, to emphasize the fact that in all these later Lists the absence of the name of a library after the entry of a book means very little more than that no copy is to be found in these three collections, or in a very few others of which printed catalogues are accessible.

The Printers for whom Lists remain to be compiled are the Redmans, the Toys, Wyer (additions to Mr. Plomer's bibliography are especially asked for), Petit, Wayland, Whitchurch, and Bonham. Offers of help will be gratefully received.

When Part IV is issued, members can re-arrange the Lists in chronological order, each List being printed separately.
